

Its proximity to the Somme front, its port and station gave the city of Le Tréport all the necessary assets to accommodate military hospitals during World War I. The Trianon Hotel, the Golf Hotel, the whole Terraces estate then uninhabited, hosted a major hospital centre that could receive up to 10,000 wounded, sick and recovering patients. Almost 300,000 soldiers were treated in these hospitals between November 1914 and March 1919.

Born in Le Tréport, Jean-Luc Dron is a genealogy and local history enthusiast who discovered the existence of this "Anglo-Canadian camp" through his collection of postcards.

The scarcity of information on this subject in the local bibliography coupled with the lack of documents in the French archives (whether municipal, departmental or national) due to the foreign origin of these hospitals prompted him to trace the unknown history of these facilities by visiting foreign archive centres.

This study is based on the war diaries of English and Canadian hospitals as well as other documents held by the National Archives, the war museums of the respective countries and on the local press.

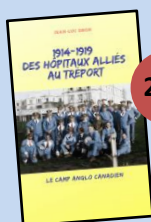

A4-sized book (21 x 29.7 cm) - 304 pages - alphabetical name index - written in french with bilingual illustration commentaries.

PURCHASE ORDER

Fill out the form below and send it to: Jean-Luc DRON – 5 rue des Coquelicots – 76400 Saint-Léonard - France - with your payment.

For more information: +33 6 04 03 56 34 or jldron@free.fr.

SIRET : 844 305 409 00014.

25 €

Number

of books

☐ Sending (United Kingdom)

Shipping and packaging

International tracked letter: 1 book = 18 €

☐ Sending (Australia – Canada - United States)

Shipping and packaging

International tracked letter: 1 book = 21,50 €

☐ Please find enclosed a cheque for € (don't forget the shipping costs) payable to Jean-Luc DRON

Date:

Signature:

☐ Paypal (jean-luc.dron@club-internet.fr)

☐ Bank transfer:

IBAN : FR76 1027 8062 1400 0977 2564 123

BIC : CMCIFR2A

LAST AND FIRST NAME:

Adress:

Zip code: City:

Email adress:.....@.....